Honeybee (Apis) – genus of the family Apidae

All species of the Apis genus live in colonies. They produce beeswax to build combs with caps on both sides, where they raise larvae and store honey. Adult bees and larvae obtain nutrition from nectar, honeydew, and pollen. Honeybees live in large colonies comprised of 20 to 80 thousand bees, depending on the species.

The average flight range of a bee is 3 kilometres, and the maximum range is 10 kilometres or more. To collect pollen for 1 kilogramme of honey, bees must visit 4 million flowers. A bee visits 50 – 100 flowers during a single flight. A bee flaps its wings 190 – 200 times per second, i.e., 11,400 times per minute.

Foraging bees collect flower pollen, add enzymes, and bring pollen to the beehive. Hive bees add amino acids, organic acids, and enzymes, which split multi-sugars into simple sugars, and take the nectar to caps in order to concentrate it. As honey thickens, bees add more organic compounds and move it to higher located caps. Thick mature honey is sealed in caps with a thin layer of beeswax.

Honeybees have produced honey in this way for 150 million years. They are the only insect to produce nutrition that is consumed by humans.

Today, when technology increasingly impacts nature, the behaviour of bees can be the most sensitive indicator of environmental pollution.

Piotr M. Śliwicki, President of ERGO Hestia Group

Division lines deepen. Traditional value systems crumble. On the centenary of the October Revolution, new barriers rise and unknown leaders emerge. New generations take over, new social classes communicate over new communication channels. New forms of capital develop. As we look for immutable values in an attempt to rebalance the undermined legacy of our predecessors, we need to hark back to fundamental, time-tried patterns. From the perspective of a responsible, mature financial corporation, one that we have been building for nearly three decades in Sopot, sustainable development is a compass which sets the direction.

This Report, presented on an annual basis to our clients, business partners, and employees, comes as an attempt to take stock of ERGO Hestia's commitment including both our market activity and social mission. According to the UN recommendations, the Report summarises our initiatives taken in 2016 to make the world a better place for the future generations and to ensure access to sustained natural, social, and business resources.

Different from last year's publication, this Report offers a new perspective on ERGO Hestia's projects aiming to foster conditions of sustainable development. It is no coincidence that the 16th edition of the Hestia Artistic Journey competition, a part of our strategic commitment which brings together business, art, and the general public, was entitled "Change Your Perspective." The change is evident in the Report, as well, as it introduces our stakeholders and brings stories of individuals and institutions, heroes and beneficiaries, including the Personal Injury Rehabilitation and Support Centre, the Integralia Foundation, the Hestia Volunteer Centre. For the first time, one of our initiatives – the Hestia Honeybee Project – provides the leitmotif of the Report. This approach follows the UN concept of sustainable development understood as both taking action and measuring its impact on the quality of life.

This Report, drafted in a world driven by innovation and change, has several main themes. One is embodied by the Hestia Sculpture Park in Sopot, which has been established among other things for purely aesthetic reasons. Another theme explores traditions and simple solutions, for instance as we actively encourage our employees to commute using environmental means of transport. ERGO Hestia strives to set the course of sustainable development in many other ways, as well. Taking care of public space is a precondition for the implementation of our Group's Strategy of The Highest Standard of Protection.

Complaint ratio according to the Financial Ombudsman's report

ERGO Hestia reports the best customer satisfaction rate in claims handling. According to the Financial Ombudsman's 2016 report, ERGO Hestia has the lowest complain rate to market share. This is the result of our everyday efforts to improve the quality of our service. ERGO Hestia is the first insurer in Poland to have a Client Ombudsman, who helps to resolve atypical problems.

The appeal ratio decreased by 1.5 pps. in 2016 from 5.6% in January to 4.1% in December. The appeal ratio decreased steadily after April from 6.46% in April to 4.1% in December. The decrease of the ratio suggests that fewer customers have objections about claims handlers' decisions.

The year 2016 was a watershed. After years of efforts and preparations, we launched iHestia: New World of Insurance. It is more than an innovative IT tool supporting customer service. It brings a revolutionary change in the relations between the insurer, the intermediary, and the client. Simple, easy to use, open to change, trusting of partners: it is iHestia.

Piotr Szczęsny Partner, SPS Handel S.A., Melvit S.A., Zakłady Mięsne Pekpol Ostrołęka S.A.

We have worked with ERGO Hestia since 1995. It seems like forever so if you ask me why we choose the insurer, the question is moot. Hestia is a given: it is a part of our business. Why? We have always worked with a single agent who is the face to Hestia for us. Her name is Danuta Sikorska. We have built so much trust over those years that any change would be unthinkable.

I am always 100 percent confident that every transaction will be fair, quick, and efficient. Our companies have faced many issues over the years; yet, all issues have always been resolved. We've had a close relationship with the insurer and we are never left on our own. Quick communication, quick decisions. We know that we can rely on Hestia in all matters of insurance and focus on our core business instead. Just like that. It's all about trust.

The one thing ERGO Hestia could improve is to have a single bank account number for each client. We now use a number of insurance products across the companies of the group and we need to use many account numbers. For the sake of simplification, let's change that!

Wiesław Sacharski ERGO Hestia's individual customer who also insures his microbusiness as a toy and stationery wholesaler

For sure, one can get used to an insurer, it becomes a routine. But the routine would not have been possible without two key elements of business practice: good price and trust. The two must always come together, and I believe that they do when you work with ERGO Hestia. A good price wouldn't be enough if I was unhappy with our relationship.

Over the many years that we've used ERGO Hestia's insurance service, we haven't experienced a major problem other than an occasional fender bender. Each incident was resolved quickly, sparing us the headache, which is absolutely great.

ERGO Hestia is a strong brand and a high-profile insurer. Some corporate lessors or banks require insurance from a designated provider. Hestia is always on their list; how could it be otherwise? In my opinion, it is a market leader thanks to its stability and strength.

Stakeholders / Clients

An accident happens. A claim is paid. Is that it? No. There is so much more than that. You may require comprehensive assistance; rehabilitation; re-entry into the job market; support in relations with healthcare providers. Since 2009, ERGO Hestia and the Personal Injury Rehabilitation and Support Centre (Polish: Centrum Pomocy Osobom Poszkodowanym, CPOP) have helped the victims of most serious car accidents regain their fitness and integrate with the community.

I had an accident in February 2015. I was three months away from graduating high school. We crashed into a truck. I was in shock so at first I didn't notice that I couldn't feel my legs... My spinal cord was damaged. I was in a coma for a week, confined to bed for another two months before my rehabilitation began. ERGO Hestia and the Personal Injury Rehabilitation and Support Centre offered me a comprehensive programme. I was given braces and then an exoskeleton.

The breakthrough came when I wiggled my toe. That was really something. But don't think that once a single toe moves, everything else will follow easily. It doesn't. It's key to keep up the effort, never stop trying until you become fit again, no matter how long it takes. When the doctors told me that I could be fit again, it was my incentive. And CPOP is helping me all along.

I have graduated college. Yes, during the programme.

Danuta Sikorska Agent, Ubezpieczenia Sikorscy, Ostrołęka

I have worked with ERGO Hestia for two decades. I feel that I am their partner, not a customer. Partnership hinges on confidence and transparency. 85 percent of my written premiums come from the corporate portfolio: it is complex, negotiated insurance approved by the head office. We have always seen eye to eye. I appreciate how open they are about other viewpoints.

Trust is the name of the game. Once the ERGO Hestia head office gives me a go-ahead for an insurance deal, I know that no other agent or intermediary can get better terms for the client. Mutual loyalty and integrity are key in our business. You cannot beat that. Friendly Partnership is the key channel of promotion of ERGO Hestia's Highest Standard of Protection. We are open to the needs of intermediaries and always strive to work closely with them whenever they need us. Intermediaries can always rely on our support. ERGO Hestia develops incentive schemes and training programmes for intermediaries. We know that our partners on the front line have a clear understanding of clients and their expectations, which is why we trust our intermediaries and never abuse their trust. We want them to be motivated not only by business targets but also by the relationship between the insurer, the intermediary, and the client, and by the social commitment of ERGO Hestia.

Paweł Kmieć Agency Pallada Ubezpieczenia, Szczecin

ERGO Hestia has quickly created a strong brand which is attractive to clients due to its credibility. Intermediaries are "internal clients" of the insurer. We recommend insurers to our customers whenever we know that the insurer is trustworthy, reliable and transparent. This makes our job easier. It's really that simple.

ERGO Hestia is unique thanks to its quality, precision, and care for detail in any process. In my opinion, its key success factors are the ability to listen to and anticipate clients' needs. Every one of us has goals of our own but when you focus on them, you may ignore changes in people's behaviour, lifestyle, work patterns. ERGO Hestia listens to intermediaries and clients, and it engages them in a genuine dialogue. That dialogue is its competitive advantage.

The key terms of our relations with intermediaries are governed by the agent agreement. Our relations with intermediaries respect mutual interests. We always follow the rules of good conduct and exercise utmost care.

Piotr Kropidłowski Agency Kropidłowscy Ubezpieczenia, Bochnia

What I believe is key is the full understanding of mutual needs of agents and clients. A friendly partnership between the insurer and an agent implies a commitment of both parties to try and jointly resolve even the most difficult challenges in a responsible way.

We have once faced a very tough case: a customer was stung by a sea wasp, a deadly venomous jellyfish. He had to travel back from the Philippines to Poland, get hospitalised, book a hotel and a return flight. The insurer was most helpful and arranged everything right away. In another case, an agent had a family situation but ERGO Hestia provided all necessary custom assistance. We have lots of stories to tell. We should strive to improve our relations based on close communications, superior products, a strong philosophy of sales, top quality of Points of sale, improving professional skills, working for the good of the community, trying to understand our lives and the world through art. This is what makes ERGO Hestia so special.

The new Insurance Distribution Act (under the IDD) requires a good preparation of agents and all parties to insurance distribution, including close co-operation. ERGO Hestia is a leader of that process. Agents know that they are partners of the insurer.

Innovation is part and parcel of development. This became apparent in 2016 with the launch of iHestia: New World of Insurance. It is much more than a mobile sales system. iHestia puts the insurance intermediary at the heart of all operations. It is a modern platform of dialogue between agents, clients, and the insurer. The intermediary becomes responsible for 80% of sales and post-sale processes. iHestia is a continuous process. Over a period of six months, the company trained and implemented the system for more than 10 thousand intermediaries in close to 3 thousand agencies.

Mateusz Czarnecki Employee, Sales Department, the youngest participant of The Hestia Talent Development Academy (HART)

We are no "human resources." We are people. I started from scratch in the call centre at the age of 20. It turns out that people can cooperate and help one another even at this very basic level. Everyone is trying hard to do their best but this is no rat race: it's teamwork so everyone can grow and get opportunities.

Managers reward those who try hard. The key incentive is trust. You trust someone who treats you like a partner. Partnership is a commitment and a motivation to try even harder. This is how the career track develops.

The Hestia Talent Development Academy provides opportunities and education, as I discovered from day one. Once you enter the HART programme, you can introduce your project or idea to the management. This is both a challenge and an opportunity.

Mariusz Mścichowski Employee, Actuarial Department, started at the Integralia Foundation

I don't think of myself as a person with disabilities. I think I owe this to Integralia. I know and like what ERGO Hestia is doing, not only by fostering job opportunities for people with disabilities but by actually hiring them.

The Integralia Foundation, which I joined before I moved on to the Financial Department and later the Actuarial Department, is a great vehicle for people with disabilities. It is natural for some of us to transfer from Integralia to the organisation. I am just one example, and not a very good one because, as I said, I don't really think of myself as a person with disabilities.

And I can repeat once more: I have developed my self-confidence owing to Integralia.

Stakeholders / Employees

Employees are the biggest asset of ERGO Hestia Group. When they come to work, we want them to feel at home. Magdalena Debowska Employee, ERGO Hestia Corporate Business Insurance Department, Member of the Board of the Cieciorka Camp Association - beneficiary of the Hestia Volunteer Centre (HCW)

No-one needs to be convinced of the importance of volunteering. HCW is happy to support everyone who feels the call and shares the good energy. I think this is what really matters.

I sit on the Board of the Cieciorka Association, a beneficiary of the Hestia Volunteer Centre. We organise camps for children with disabilities. I work with both ERGO Hestia and HCW so I can experience such initiatives on both ends. Volunteering makes employees proud to be part of a company which is more than a modern corporation: it is a community sharing the ambition to participate in spontaneous volunteering projects. Hestia employees as volunteers get to know one another after work. People of different personalities, different professions, different backgrounds and different positions have the opportunity to come together and work hand in hand outside the office. This gives a new meaning to the corporate world.

The assistance which emerges from ideas proposed by employees is invaluable. If you realise that someone is in need, you can talk to HCW co-ordinators. The original beneficiaries were people in the organisation but our reach has expanded and volunteering campaigns are now in full swing.

An accident. A misfortune. Assistance. Insurance. Treatment. Disability. What's next? How to go back to work, full activity, a satisfying life? Since 2004, the ERGO Hestia Group Integralia Foundation supports people with congenital and acquired disabilities to join the job market. The Foundation helps people with disabilities to unlock their potential and gain self-confidence. Integralia creates friendly jobs within the Group and helps other companies to do the same.

Katarzyna Lamparska Former employee of the Integralia Foundation, volunteer, beneficiary of the Hestia Volunteer Centre

Don't talk to a person in a wheelchair from behind their back. When you shake their hand, be careful not to touch the control panel of their electric wheelchair, as some people do. These are some of the tips I share during training for abled people who want to know how to approach people with disabilities.

It is a combination of theory and practice, general knowledge and psychology. And it is part of what Integralia does. When I left Integralia and retired due to my disability, they told me, "Get well and come back as a volunteer. We have lots of projects for you. There's plenty of work for you to do. No bumming around!" It was crucial for me that they extended a helping hand. Now I get out of home and come to the head office of ERGO Hestia and the Foundation, where I am both an active contributor and a beneficiary. I hope that all people with disabilities feel equally needed and get the same treatment. I do my best at the Foundation do make this happen.

In today's motley world of pop culture filled with sensational media reports, real talent may be difficult to spot. The Hestia Artistic Journey (APH) Foundation helps by promoting young Polish artists who are students of fine arts. Launched in 2002, the Foundation awards artists with exhibitions and international residence programmes in New York and Valencia.

Hanna Dyrcz

Winner of the Special Award of ERGO Hestia Group President in the 15t^h edition of the Hestia Artistic Journey (APH) competition

"Let Them See You," is a motto of the Hestia Artistic Journey competition; it is both a promise and a condition. For an artist, being seen is key. If they see you, they will know you. In the APH competition, "they" are crucial, too. They are curators, critics, artists both established and young, business people, as well as people who are not part of the art world. In other words, it is a broad range of potential audience members. The competition introduces works of art to such a broad audience at a high-profile institution: the Museum of Modern Art in Warsaw. It is the first such opportunity for many students.

Both the awards and the participation in the competition provide a huge incentive. I believe that hard work and tenacity are necessary at the outset of the artistic adventure. ERGO Hestia is a patron of competition winners; this may sound very formal but, in fact, it stands for closeness and a lot of opportunities.

Equal opportunities; prevention of social exclusion; equality of the sexes; environmental protection and conservation of natural resources; support for innovation: these are important goals of corporate social responsibility. Social commitment, which is part of the 17 UN Sustainable Development Goals, is the foundation of ERGO Hestia's activity.

To raise the awareness of Poles about insurance, which still lags behind the Western European standards, ERGO Hestia has launched a series of workshops for junior high school students. The Young Insurance Academy introduces students to the basics of insurance products and services, the responsibilities of the insurer, as well as the rules of first aid for victims of traffic accidents.

Presented to leading intellectuals, essayists, and social activists since 2001, the Award promotes a mind-set and behaviour combining intellectual integrity, courage, and sensitivity to others: the values fostered by the patron of the award Father Józef Tischner.

ERGO Hestia is open to all clients.

Overcoming barriers and helping clients every day is more than a slogan. We work with Migam to offer service in sign language. Deaf clients who wish to buy insurance or report a claim are supported by a sign language interpreter who assists them in a videochat with ERGO Hestia consultants. The interpreter is available on all business days. All the clients need to do is go online and click the sign language assistant option on our website.

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

Iwona Cichosz

Ambassador of the Deaf Community in Poland, the face of ERGO Hestia's image campaign "We understand each other without words", employee of Migam

What is key is good understanding, an open mind, familiarity with the nature of our everyday problems, empathy, the ability to put yourself in the shoes of a deaf person, being unafraid and willing to talk to them: this is what helps to integrate deaf people.

We cannot overcome the widespread stereotypes about deaf people just on our own. Any support for the change is invaluable. We want to be treated like normal people and not someone with a disability. ERGO Hestia's sign language interpreter service is a big gesture for us. I have been a fan of ERGO Hestia's initiatives for years as the company continuously supports people with hearing impairments and aspires to improve the quality of service for them. It's great that ERGO Hestia is a partner of the film "Signs", in which I make an appearance. I think the film can help us to change the world together.

Support for cultural, social, and sport events is ERGO Hestia's daily bread. In addition to the art patronage programme (Hestia Artistic Journey), we sponsor and partner with the Father Józef Tischner Znak and Hestia Award, which promotes social leaders who foster humanist values. We support athletes, including young athletes, who train at the ERGO Hestia Sopot Sailing Club (Polish: SKŻ ERGO Hestia Sopot). We are the main sponsor of ERGO ARENA, which hosts high-profile sport and entertainment events that have already brought together an audience of 2 million.

ERGO Hestia for the Environment

If you want to change the world, start with yourself. According to the time-old adage, ERGO Hestia supports environmental protection by changing itself and its immediate environment. We promote cycling and carpooling among commuting employees. We support videoconferences and the paperless office. We continue to expand our fleet of hybrid cars.

Kamil Wyszkowski UN Global Compact Poland General Director

Business plays a key role in today's world in the context of sustainable development goals. We at the UN have seen it for long. The breakthrough came in 2000 with the United Nations Global Compact (UNGC). It integrates business in dialogue with the UN to look for solutions to the problems of our world. The reason is simple: businesses, especially international corporations, can make decisions quicker than any state. Businesses have bigger budgets, better adaptive capacity, and more flexibility. And businesses are the key player impacting our planet and the quality of life. We believe in talking to businesses in order to work out a good compromise. We mustn't ignore businesses, which are a key partner in solving global problems.

Business on its own is neither good nor evil. It is a space where change can happen, for better or for worse. The UN and the Sustainable Development Goals aspire to include possibly many sectors, SMEs, and global corporations in sustainable development initiatives.

ERGO Hestia is serious about its commitment to the UN Global Compact. We work together in the Standards of Ethics Programme in Poland to introduce quality standards and develop ambitious projects, such as the guidelines for whistle-blower laws. I second ERGO Hestia's commitment as a sponsor of the arts and its initiatives in the Shadow Economy Prevention Programme in Poland undertaken in communication with the Global Compact.

ERGO Hestia for the Environment

Sopot, the home city of ERGO Hestia's headquarters, is a spa. The notion "spa" is an asset, as well as a commitment to ensure care and protection. In partnership with the Association of Polish Spa Communities, ERGO Hestia organises an annual contest for environmental initiatives of Polish spas: ECO HESTIA SPA. We offer an award of PLN 100 thousand for continued environmental initiatives of the winner community.

iHestia

ERGO Hestia deploys state-of-the-art solutions to mitigate environmental impact. iHestia helps to minimise the consumption of paper and fuel and reduce CO2 emissions because insurance offers and policies are no longer delivered to clients and intermediaries in a hard copy.

Honeybees pollinate plants and help them grow. Honeybees foster the environment while being extremely sensitive to adverse environmental impact. Honeybees have recently been dying out. ERGO Hestia wants to help honeybees. We have opened an apiary on the roof of one of our office buildings. Although our honeybees are exposed to strong winds from the sea, they are doing very well. They pollinate plants in the Hestia Park and the nearby gardens, and they produce excellent honey.

potential and represents a major commitment. With the award from ERGO Hestia Group, we can work with other communities for the sake of sustainable development.

Our long-time environmental initiatives under the motto "Uniejów Thermal Spa: Friends of Nature" have been acknowledged by the competition panel thanks to our commitment, determination, and creativity in support of comprehensive and rational use of invaluable natural resources combined with dynamic economic and social development. These goals can go hand in hand!

The real hot springs of Uniejów reside in the energy of our community. The Uniejów of tomorrow is all about using local assets through diverse investments and ensuring an integrated and well-promoted tourist offer so that our town, like other spas, can become a strong, popular brand recognised in Poland and beyond.

About the Care Report

About the Care Report

The Care Report has been developed in a dialogue with the stakeholders: clients, intermediaries, and employees. According to the definition, a stakeholder is an entity which impacts us and which we impact in our business. Based on the definition, ERGO Hestia has selected stakeholder groups with the biggest mutual impact.

This Report has been drafted in line with the G4 guidelines of the Global Reporting Initiative (GRI). The international reporting guidelines ensure access to and comparability of data in CSR (sustainable development) reports and provide stakeholders with information necessary to make informed decisions. The Report has been drafted by our Sustainable Development Section. We have held focus interviews with selected stakeholder groups (employees, insurance agents, insurance brokers, journalists). They were asked for opinions on co-operation with ERGO Hestia, the Care 2015 Report, and the data contained therein. We have met with the government of the City of Sopot and several selected business partners. We also offer on-going training to employees and managers where we discuss sustainable development, present the report and its key sustainable development content. Training participants provide their opinions on the activity of ERGO Hestia and voice their expectations and ideas. ERGO Hestia strives to address all expectations of the stakeholders, many of which are presented in this Report 2016. The key issues raised by the stakeholders are presented in the sections focused on specific stakeholder groups.

The Report was prepared in several steps. The first step was to define the list of aspects directly and indirectly related to sustainable development. Next, we assigned them to the relevant GRI G4 indicators and, where those were not applicable, we expanded the scope of aspects. Following a review of the indicators in terms of their applicability and relevance to the organisation, we decided to present the key required GRI G4 profile indicators, as well as other indicators not covered by the guidelines. All aspects were identified as material when defining the scope of the Report. We did not identify limitations of the Report with respect to material aspects within and outside the organisation. We did not identify material changes of the scope and aspect boundaries compared to previous periods covered by the Report. There were no material changes compared to the previous Report published on 6 December 2016.

ERGO Hestia Group plans to publish social responsibility reports on an annual basis.

ERGO

About the Care Report

The Report follows the GRI (Global Reporting Initiative) standards of corporate social responsibility. All areas of ERGO Hestia group's activity presented in the Report are identified as material to its business activity and impact on the social, business, and natural environment. The Report includes the role of the stakeholders and integrates their comments on some of the contents of the Report.
